A strange and unexpected sight greeted the eyes of our reporter as he returned from a late expedition in search of news last evening. In Nassau-st., between Sprace and Beckman-sts., about a dozen men and two garts were engaged in the apparently hopeless task of endeavoring to remove the accumulations of filth which, for more than four months, have been gathering undisturbed. Vain as the effort evidently was, the intention manifested was pleasant to contemplate, and our reporter stood and gazed for several minutes at the inspiring sight. The heavy fog yesterday morning was productive of much inconvenience and chargin to the passengers on the Brooklyn ferry-boats. The ferry-boat America was lying in her sile, ready to start, and only awaiting the arrival of the Columbia. When the latter came in crowded with passengers who were anxious to get on shore, the passengers saw a chance of gaining the shore without being compelled to wait for the America to back out. About 50 passengers leaped from one boat to the other, but as soon as they gained a footing the pilot of the America was compelled to give the order for starting, thus preventing the Columbia's passengers gaining the shore. The consequence was that a number of them were conveyed back to Brooklyn, greatly to their annoyance.

A meeting of the Common Council was held yesterday afternoon. A communication from the Mayor was read, in which he objected to a bill for widering Middle st, and changing the name of Prospectave. The bill relative to the proposed Washington ave, Improvement was also condemned. Bills have also been introduced which contemplate an increase in the salaries of many employes, and of appointing others to new offices. These matters, the Mayor contended, should be left entirely with the local authorities. No provision having been made for the payment of new salaries, this would necessarily engender loans of money, and great anxiety is felt for the future relative to the debt, there being new bends issued every year. Attention was also called to the Law Committee. The communication was referred to the Law Committee, The Communication was referred to the Law Committee. The Communities of Railroad Co. THE WHISKY SWINDLE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The Columbia Spy for two or three weeks past has been creating some sensation in certain quarters by preferring or insimulting charges against the administration of the affairs of the Collector's office for this revenue district. The first article we have not seen, but the gest of the matter which we gather from the subsequent publications is that a "Whisky Ring" exists in this county, the members of which, who are distillers, pay $1,000 a month teward a fund for the benefit of certain other members of the "Ring," who are not distillers. It was further charged or hishuated that, while the Collector did not, of course, receive this money, he was cognizant of the fact that the "Ring" existed, and that the money was paid into the hands of one of his particular friends. There were other allegations in regard to the seizure and shipment of whisky, the manner and place of its storage, the mysterious manner of its conversion into water before it reached the Marshal's office, etc., some of which, we understand, can be satisfactorily explained by the parties implicated; and we hope, for the credit of all concerned, that everything charged or inshuated against official misconduct may be either clearly explained or disproven.

So long as we knew nothing of the facts alleged, and were not in communication with responsible parties who had the means of knew ing, it was not our business to interfere between The Spy and the alleged "Ring;" but when our attention is called to such things by a party who is not only responsible, but whose position is such as to give him opportunities of knowing whereof he affirms, our line of duty as a public Journalist is plain. The Collector is a public office, his official conduct is open to criticism, and we have no doubt he will thank us for thus giving him an opportunity to answer the following interrogatories, and to refute their instinations, our columns being of course open for that purpose:

PALEONTOLOGY AS A SCIENCE.

A very select audience was assembled last evening in the rooms of the Lyceum of Natural History, in the Mott Memorial Library Building, to listen to an address from Mr. Waterhouse Hawkins of London, relative to affording the masses of the people greater facilities to affording the masses of the people greater facilities than they now enjoy for attaining a knowledge of paleontology. Mr. Hawkins has lately arrived here from London. He is well-known as a naturalist and paleontologist, and more particularly as the constructor of the fossil animals representing the first epochs of geology, which attracted so greatly the attention of visitors to the Crystal Palace in Sydenham. His object in visiting this course in Sydenham. His object in visiting this course in Sydenham. His object in visiting this course for furthering the cause of technological and scientific education. Having been introduced by the President of the Lycenm, and nost kindly greeted by the audience, Mr. Hawkins remarked that Lord Stanley said, not long since, the great question of the day—and it was one which operated on both sides of the Atlantic—was how to educate the masses of the people. How can we aid the laboring population to gain at least a little of that knowledge which is power! In his opinion the desideratum could be accomplished only by making matters of science both instructive and amusing. It would not answer to establish schools, merely, where natural sciences could be taught. This might do very well for children, but the masses of the people had not the time, nor could they be expected to attend school. Yet the people in general demanded that something be done for them; and, by presenting to their attention scientific matters in such a light as should combine amusement with instruction, they may be led to become so far interested as to pursue the study until at least a general knowledge of natural sciences be acquired. The first effort in this direction was made in Eugland at the London Exhibition in 1852, at Sydenham. Here there was assigned to him (Mr. Hawkins) a department for the display of paleontological specimens, or at the accordance with this their production met, at first, with some degree of indicale, it was at last very generally conceded that, so far as science can determine the ma than they now enjoy for attaining a knowledge of paleontology. The Board then took up for consideration a resolution to concur with the Councilmen in adopting over the Mayor's veto a resolution directing the Clerk of the Common Council to compile and publish 15,060 copies of the Corporation Manual for the year 1858, and omiting to fix any amount to be appropriated therefor. By a vote of 13 to 2 the Board concurred with the Board of Councilmen. Resolutions were adopted to pave Second-ave, from Fourteenth to Nineteenth-st., except the space between the railroad tracks; Courtlandt-st. from Broadway to Greenwich-st., and West Pourteenth-st. from University-place to Eighth-ave, with Nicolson pavement. Mr. Norton presented a petition, signed by many persons representing the Cartmen's and Citizens'Association, asking the Common Council to adopt an ordinance to prohibit the practice of piling snow by the sides of the city railroad tracks. Which was referred to the Committee on Law. Adjourned.

A CARD FROM ALD, COULTER.

Sin: I read in your paper of this date, in your Washington correspondence, that I was the owner of two distilleries in the Ninth District, and also held a place in the Street Department, which is a mistake. I never had $1 interest in a distillery, neither directly nor indirectly, nor never received $1 from the Street Department. Knowing you do not wish to injure me knowingly, I hope you will correct the article above mentioned, and greatly oblige your obedient servant,

THE STREET-CLEANING COMMISSION. The Senate Committee appointed to investi-The Senate Committee appointed to investigate Judge Whiting's contract for cleaning the streets of this city, met again yesterday morning. Judge Whiting was recalled, and testified that his statement that his pay-roll for the month of February was $13,000, was correct; he owns to horses and carts, and hires an average of 100 more; declined to produce his books, but had no objection that Senators Crowley and Kennedy should, as individuals, inspect the beoks; would not accord a like privilege to all Senators; if he made his own out of the contract, would publish a statement, and give up the contract, and then suggest, among other things, that reservoirs he used, so that the contractor can use water in cleaning; whether the amount stipulated in the contract is sufficient to keep the streets clean depends on what would be considered clean; had not cleaned the streets since the thaw set in, because the mud was too thin to be removed; the streets were now kept in a better condition for half a million, than they were in 1863 for a million and a-half; never knew the streets of New-York, during the 20 years he was a resident in this city, to be cleaner than now; beside making the almosphere of New-York more salubrious, it was also his intention in taking the contract to correct certain abuses and make other improvements; half made no charges against the City for newly paved streets not in existence at the time the contract was entered into, but kept an account of their expenses; whether he should charge the city or not is now under the consideration of counsel; was now sweeping seven miles more than were contracted for did not remember whether the contract was not drawn in conformity with the original specification, and had no interest in the Composite Company. Mr. Alexander W. Craven, Encineer to the Croton Aqueduct Board, testified that he streets were now in as clean condition as they were under the old system, but were not feep and believed that the streets were now in as clean condition as they were under the old s gate Judge Whiting's contract for cleaning the streets of

MR. WATSON'S SALE OF BLOODED STOCK.

The sale of Mr. Watson's well-known race The Sale of Mr. Watson's well-known race horses attracted the attention of the larger portion of the racing community, and they were disposed of yesterday afternoon at the owner's farm, about a mile and a-half from Boilins Springs, N. Y. The buyers from New-York were conveyed from the station at Boiling Springs to the farm in vehicles of various descriptions, from the eighty horse ceach to the one-horse buggy. On arriving at the stables, about half an hour was spent in taking a look at the stock, which was all in very good condition, reflecting much credit on the groom of the establishment and his assistants. The attendance of racing men was very good, and among those present we noticed Messra. R. W. Cameron L. W. Jerome, P. Handend, Sanford, Dr. Irving, Charles Bathgate, Col. McDaniels, Purdy, Currier, Hongland, Dr. Green, Francis Morris, S. W. Ficklin of Virginia, W. Butter, A. J. Minor, Eckerson, J. Hunter, H. Felters, Schieffelin, and H. Killion of Philadelphia. After partaking of a louch the auctioneer, Dr. Underwood, solicited the attention of those present, and commenced the sale by reading the terms and stipulating that all the horses were to be sold with their engagements. The first brought out was "Onward," the well-known chestnut. The lorse was looking very well and in good condition. Bidding was very slow at first, and after a little competition he was knocked down to Mr. L. W. Jerome for $4,600, who also became the purchaser of "Deliware," for the comparatively small sum of $4,500. Number three was "Captain Moore," bought by Mr. K. W. Cameron for the very low figure of $1,500. This was the chcapest lot during the sale. "Vixen," a three-year-old filly, by Bairownie, was next offered, and knocked down to Mr. Schieffelin. No. 6 was "Romine Braes," who ran very well lark year, and the hammer dropped to Mr. Eckerson's bid of $550. "Bonne Lass" full sister to Bonnie Braes, a good-looking two-year-old filly, became the property of a good judge, Col. McDaniels, who obtained her for $500. The next lot was " horses attracted the attention of the larger portion of the racing community, and they were disposed of yesterday
